

The Hospitality Bookings Diagnostic

A three-part framework to find out why tables, orders or bookings aren't filling — before you spend another pound on ads.

1. Demand — are the right people finding you?

- ☐ Do you know which channel actually brings in new customers, versus repeat ones?
- ☐ Are you visible in local search (Google Maps, "near me" searches) as well as social?
- ☐ Do weeknights stay quiet even when weekends and events are busy?
- ☐ Is your spend concentrated on awareness, when the real gap is conversion?

2. Booking route — can they act once they find you?

- ☐ Can someone book a table or place an order in under 3 clicks from your Instagram or Google listing?
- ☐ Do delivery platforms bring volume but take margin and give you no customer data?
- ☐ Is your booking or ordering system actually mobile-friendly?
- ☐ Do you lose people between "interested" and "booked"?

3. Measurement — can you prove what drove the sale?

- ☐ Can you tie a specific booking or order back to a specific post, ad, or channel?
- ☐ Is marketing handled reactively between service, with no time to review what's working?
- ☐ Do you know your cost per booking, or just your total ad spend?
- ☐ Would you know if a marketing change actually caused a change in revenue?

How to read your answers: most hospitality marketing problems live in just one of these three areas — not all three. Find which one, and the fix is usually faster and cheaper than another campaign.

Faisal Mahmud

Fractional Marketing Director

I've built a hospitality brand myself, not just advised on one.
Book a free 15-minute discovery call at faisalconsulting.co.uk