

Campaign Brief Template

Agree the commercial outcome, audience, measurement and ownership before the work starts.

How to use it

- Complete the brief with the people who own the commercial result, delivery and measurement.
- Be specific. Replace terms such as 'drive leads' with a defined outcome, target, timeframe and source.
- Do not approve activity until the measurement and tracking sections have named owners.

Expected deliverables

List the outputs, format, quantity and any fixed specifications.

SECTION 01

Business problem and context

What needs to change

State the problem or opportunity. Include the evidence, what has already been tried and the cost of doing nothing.

Why this work matters now

Explain the business timing, any sales programme, product priority, market shift or operational dependency.

Relevant past activity

Record results, creative or learning from similar work. Link or attach the supporting evidence.

SECTION 02

Objectives and outcomes

Commercial outcome

State one measurable result and timeframe. Examples include qualified pipeline at an agreed cost, incremental revenue, bookings, donations or retention.

Marketing objective

State what marketing must change to support the commercial outcome. Separate activity measures from the result.

Communications objective

State what the audience should think, feel or understand after seeing the work.

Decision criteria

What result would justify continuing, changing or stopping the activity?

SECTION 03

Audience and proposition

Primary audience

Define the segment, market, decision-maker, buying stage and any useful customer insight. Include a target account or market list where relevant.

Desired customer action

Name the next action and the reason someone would take it now.

Proposition and proof

Write the single main promise, the evidence behind it and any mandatory message.

Competitors and alternatives

Record who or what the audience may choose instead, how those options are positioned and what this work must answer.

SECTION 04

Journey, channels and delivery

Customer journey

Show where the campaign enters the journey, what happens next and where hand-offs or drop-offs are likely.

Channel role

Explain the job of each channel. Avoid a list of platforms without a reason for using them.

Creative and content requirements

Include deliverables, format, mandatory assets, brand or legal requirements, references and any reuse plan.

Timing, seasonality and dependencies

Record launch dates, cultural or seasonal moments, production lead times, approvals and external dependencies.

SECTION 05

Measurement and tracking

Agree the definition, target and source before activity begins. A dashboard is not a source of truth unless the underlying data is understood.

Metric role	Definition	Baseline	Target	Source	Owner
Primary outcome
Supporting indicator
Guardrail

Conversion and event definition

Name the action, exact trigger, value, currency and parameters. State how duplicate events and test submissions will be handled.

Campaign naming and UTMs

Name the taxonomy owner and the agreed source, medium, campaign, content and term conventions.

CRM and revenue hand-off

State how the lead, booking or order reaches the CRM or finance record, how quality is defined and which identifier joins the records.

QA and reporting

Name who will test before launch, who will check after launch and how often platform, analytics and commercial numbers will be reconciled.

SECTION 06

Testing, budget and ownership

Test plan

Write the hypothesis, control, variants, primary metric, guardrail, minimum sample and stopping rule before the test starts.

Budget and allocation

Record the total budget, what is fixed, what can move and the evidence required to reallocate it.

Roles and approvals

Name the owners for commercial outcome, campaign, creative, media, tracking, data, sales hand-off and final approval.

Risks and constraints

Include legal, consent, brand, market, stock, operational, technical or reputational constraints.

SECTION 07
